

Faculty Position in Risk Management
College of Business
Butler University
Indianapolis, Indiana

We seek applications for an associate professor or experienced assistant professor in Risk Management and Insurance to begin in August 2010. The Butler University College of Business is the beneficiary of a generous gift to establish a program in Risk Management and Insurance. This is an opportunity for the successful candidate to help build a new program and become one of two faculty members in the program we establish.

Candidates should have the Ph.D. and established credentials in Risk Management and Insurance, but also be qualified to teach in a related area such as finance or economics. The College is interested in building an undergraduate program in risk management. There is also potential for programs at the MBA level and in executive education. Candidates must provide evidence that they will be excellent teachers and researchers and display an interest in vigorous interaction with the business community.

Fully accredited by AACSB, the College of Business enrolls 650 full-time undergraduates, nearly 300 part-time MBA students, and has a Master of Professional Accounting (MPAcc) program. A vibrant university, Butler is committed to providing personalized liberal and professional education to 3,900 undergraduate and 500 graduate students in its five colleges (Business, Liberal Arts and Sciences, Pharmacy and Health Sciences, Education, and Fine Arts). Extensive internship and service opportunities are made possible by Butler's location five miles from downtown Indianapolis, the twelfth largest city in the United States. Learn more about Indianapolis at www.indy.org.

Butler is committed to developing a diverse pool of applicants and encourages the application and nomination of women and people of color. Letters of interest should include a curriculum vitae and names of three references. We require all applications to be submitted electronically and addressed to:
