

Proceedings of the 2018 Risk Theory Seminar

April 20-22, 2018

Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia

1. Mortality Risk, Insurance, and the Value of Life

Daniel Bauer, University of Alabama

Darius Lakdawalla, University of Southern California

Julian Reif, University of Illinois

2. The Lifetime Costs of Bad Health

Mariacristina De Nardi, University College London

Svetlana Pashchenko, University of Georgia

Ponpoje Porapakarm, National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies

3. Information and Risk Preferences: The Case of Insurance Choice

Amit Gandhi, University of Pennsylvania

Anya Samek, University of Southern California

Ricardo Serrano-Padial, Drexel University

4. The Dark Side of Liquid Bonds in Fire Sales

Maria Chaderina, Vienna University of Economics and Business

Alexander Mürmann, Vienna University of Economics and Business

Christoph Scheuch, Vienna University of Economics and Business

5. Insurers as Asset Managers and Systemic Risk

Andrew Ellul, Indiana University

Chotibhak Jotikasthira, Southern Methodist University

Anastasia Kartasheva, Bank of International Settlements

Christian Lundblad, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Wolf Wagner, Rotterdam School of Management

6. It's All About Speed and Costs: The Impact of Digital Technology on the Insurance Market Structure

Martin Eling, University of St. Gallen

Ruo Jia, Peking University

Casey Rothschild, Wellesley College

7. The Efficiency of Voluntary Risk Classification in Insurance Markets

Keith Crocker, Pennsylvania State University

Nan Zhu, Pennsylvania State University

8. The Moral Hazard of Lifesaving Innovations: Naloxone Access, Opioid Abuse, and Crime

Jennifer Doleac, University of Virginia

Anita Mukherjee, University of Wisconsin-Madison

9. Consumption Does Not Evolve as a Random Walk Around Small Income Shocks in Life-Cycle Models

Jeanne Commault, European University Institute

10. Responses to Saving Commitments: Evidence from Mortgage Run-offs

Steffen Andersen, Copenhagen Business School

Philippe d'Astous, HEC Montréal

Jimmy Martínez-Correa, Copenhagen Business School

Stephen Shore, Georgia State University